English Day

We have English Day every Tuesday. We create an English rich environment and encourage students to speak English. We use different themes in our activities such as commitment, Guangdong-Hong Kong Macao Greater Bay Area and The Belt and Road Initiative, integrity and STEM to increase interest and usage.

Our native English teachers help promote English Day activities during the recess and lunch break with our students. They also help to provide various topics through the campus TV. Our students do not only join the activities on the English Day, some of them are English ambassadors and helping teachers hold game booths or other activities too.

A big Halloween tent was set up in the playground where students could play games and use English to earn treats.

On English Day, our English ambassadors are committed to introducing games and helping in game booths.

Integrating Science, Technology Engineering and Mathematics (STEM) into our activities. Students participate in an activity using magnets.

What is Dim Sum?

By Samuel Brotherwood

I have lived in Hong Kong for almost six years so I like to think I have some idea what Dim Sum is now. But what is Dim Sum like to someone who has never been here before? Breakfast? No. Lunch? Not really? Sweet? Some. Savoury? Some. Confused? Probably!

A History in the Tea?

Let's start with the tea. There are lots of teas, as you know, but my favourite is Jasmine(香片) because it tastes almost fruity though sometimes I will have Bolay (普洱) because of the mild taste yet rich colour.

I understand it is polite to tap two fingers on the table when someone pours tea. I heard this was because once upon a time, an emperor liked to see go around new places in China in normal clothes so the people saw him as a normal person. His servants could not tell anyone who he was so they would use their fingers to show respect to their emperor instead of bowing. This became a symbol of respect. Wow! Even just drinking tea is interesting!

So much food!

Dim Sum comes in small dishes so you can choose many and eat lots of different things. Some of the teachers' have told me Chinese people like many choices so Dim Sum is perfect. I love food so Dim Sum, again, is perfect.

In England we don't really mix tastes. Something sweet is usually for after a meal and never during a meal so this was a new experience for me. Custard Buns and then Curried Squid (咖喱蒸魷魚)? Amazing!

Where to go?

I have two favourite restaurants. The first is near the school in Lau Fau Shan behind all the fish restaurants. It gets busy after 11:30am. They do a great Law My Gai where they fry an egg on top of the sticky rice. Delicious! And the Custard Buns are pretty good too. It is close to where I live so it is a place I go to often.

The second restaurant is on Tai Mo Shan in a village called Cheun Long. The restaurant here is very old. The food is prepared fresh and then you help yourself. The waiters count your dishes when you have finished so you can pay. This place is amazing because it is in the trees so the views are amazing. Even the tea is special as the water they use is fresh from the mountain. It's supposed to be really healthy and clean.

What is it then?

So what is Dim Sum to someone who doesn't know? Dim Sum is historical. It is different. It is for family and friends. It is for relaxing. It is cheap (though it can be expensive). It is real food and some say (me) it might even be the best food in the world!

Bon appetite...or I should say, 'Sihk faahn!'
